MASTERING ENGINEER

Over the past five years, Sarah Register has carved a unique niche into the world of mastering. From rock legend Lou Reed to recent indie-pop duo Mates of State, Sarah's diverse discography of solo and assistant mastering work continues to expand, as does her reputation for lending an amazing ear in the studio.

Knowing instinctively that she would be surrounded by music, teenage Sarah found New York University's Music Technology program, and dove headfirst into the NYC audio scene. There, she participated in countless recordings, various sonic adventures, and some production and sound design projects both in and out of the classroom. Sarah's natural talent and diligence led her to a well-earned position at The Lodge where she became helpful in many different arenas, both creative and professional. Her driving work ethic combined with an intuitive knowledge for sound and its inner-workings advanced Sarah swiftly through many studio roles to a engineering position.

Sarah has assisted Chief Mastering Engineer Emily Lazar on over a thousand records, many critically acclaimed, such as David Bowie's "Heathen", The Shins' "Chutes Too Narrow" and Morrissey's "Ringleader Of The Tormentors". Avidly interested in the possibilities of audio as a solo mastering engineer, Sarah has had the opportunity to work her subtle innovations into hundreds of projects including: Lou Reed's "Island Of The Misfit Toys", Laurie Anderson's "Hidden Inside Mountains" and Depeche Mode's SACD version of "Playing The Angel". She has had the honor of working with some other of her own personal favorites in addition to the above, including Say Hi To Your Mom, Human Television, Calla, Kid Koala and more.

Current articles on Sarah Register include features in Cool'eh magazine, Pro Sound News and Deli Magazine.
